VOLUNTEERS WILL LEARN ABOUT COASTAL MANAGEMENT, HELP REHABILITATE DUNE VEGETATION AND REMOVE LITTER TO IMPROVE HABITAT FOR NESTING

BUCASIA is an important turtle nesting beach for the flatback turtle (Natator depressus). An average of 16 flatback turtle nests have been recorded each year along Bucasia beach. The beach itself is threatened by a number of pressures including weed invasion, the impacts of coastal development and recreational use. Coastcare aims to address these impacts through volunteer based action.
